DESCRIPTION

The HCU350 is a specially-designed, high-output condenser microphone that delivers high performance, reliability, and accurate pickup for both vocal and instrument sound. It is an excellent choice for professional recordings, live performances, and other critical sound reinforcement applications.

The HCU350 is a uni-directional microphone offering a minimum sensitivity at an angle of 180 degrees while reducing pickup of sounds from the rear. Its polar pattern focuses on the desired sound source while suppressing unwanted ambient noise and feedback, and ensures a clean separation between individual instruments. It incorporates a transformerless electronic circuit that delivers high-output, low self-noise, and high sound pressure handling. This circuit reduces distortion at high acoustic pressures and minimizes interference that may affect the balanced audio signal.

Light but ruggedly constructed, the HCU350 is built to withstand the rigors of heavy field and studio usage. It comes in a rubberized black finish that defers reflection and halation from stage lights. It also features an excellent shock-mount system for effective isolation from the handling noise and vibration typically found in live performances. Its XLR connector can be easily mated to standard microphone cables. The HCU350 requires an external 9 - 52V DC phantom power source.
